Hash Trash (Run # 1211) - Scribe—Robert “Sweetness”

VENUE: Barclays Park, St. Andrew

DATE: 8 October 2006

HARES: Michelle G. and Ryan B.

Barbados is a flat island. Honest. It says so in the guide book I bought and so it must be true. HOWEVER..... the fact is that those of you who have been here for longer than 2 hashes (our current status) know better. If last week's run up and down the highest point on the island was a rude awakening to the innocent hasher then this week's trail was a confirmation that you should never believe guide book writers.

So a good crowd assembled at the Barclay's Park, the old hands eyeing the hillside opposite and speculating where Michelle and Ryan would send us. Each had selected their route of choice and set off following the blobs (of flour, not the sad old Hashers like me and Mike) along the road. At the first check they put their money where their mouths were and attacked the slope. After a lung bursting 10 minutes someone realised that the hares were being sneaky and a backcheck along the beach pointed the true way. Well, for about 100 metres when it swung back up the hill. Eventually broken by China Doll (Brush) the trail started its ascent. Near the next check Robert & Ralf followed 2 marks to the left and disappeared. The herd milled around waiting for a call until it became clear that we weren't going that way. Someone eventually found trail right and down a bit. A herd of semi-interested cows had fun convincing some hashers that they were really dangerous wild animals but most of the pack just ran/walked/stumbled through them to a hidden stream. More uphill, more searching for flour and there we were in Chalky Mount. It was obvious the route had to go left and so that's where more than a few of the pack went hunting. Yes, I was one of them.

Naturally the sneaky hares had pushed it right, down the road, up to the top of yet another ridge and then finally the long descent could begin.

George did a good impersonation of a surfer without a surf board or waves as he descended the steepest part of the island. The rest admired him but took the much easier ridge to his left. What the FRB's were doing by now I have no idea. Probably drinking beer or rum.

We stragglers got in as the barbeque was being fired up and the beers cooled down. A man with dead albino mongoose on his head called various sinners for heinous crimes. As one of these was for the slow serving of drinks by his handpicked henchmen it made you worry about his suitability for such a responsible position. Virgins Gilberto and Suneeta were welcomed. Miscreants were given assorted garments to wear and the hares were thanked. It then was revealed that they had set out at 5 a.m. to lay trail. Whether they got up early or got home late from Friday night's revels was not revealed.

The barbeque was a hit. Two chicken skewers are probably still there waiting for their owners to pick them up and a couple of harriettes were having great fun turning sweetcorn into charcoal. (Did they honestly eat the charred offerings or use them to draw pictures with?) Too much beer and rum was drunk – what's new – and the last of the convoy headed back with at least one satisfied hasher (me!) having had a great day out with BH3.

Robert Mulliss (Sweetness) hopefully on our way to Trini. See you there!
