Hash Trash (Run 1188) - Scribe—David “Pyro” (BH3 Founder)

When I return to Barbados, I will accept a down down on account of the late delivery of this Trash. Anti-hashlike behaviour i.e. Hash Heresy! Future RA take note. Now to the run.

A sizeable pack set off at the allotted time from a location well known to your scribe who actually lived at Ralf & Lydia's house in the mid 1980's.

Then, a certain parliamentarian was the owner and her idea of a house was nothing like the improved structure and surroundings which have been formed by the hares.

The trail led us briefly uphill and across a gully towards the golf course where the trail petered out simply because rain had allegedly fallen earlier in the day and wiped out the miserable dots of flour put down by the hares. The fact that Ralf chose to follow the pack indicated to your scribe that he knew that the quantities of flour that had been laid were indeed the most miserable of quantities! Nevertheless, the assembled pack of hounds proved to be a doughty lot and found traces of the trail which took us through and down a series of roads and tracks within the Sandy Lane estate and on down towards Holetown. At one point the hash led us into a graveyard where half of the Doc's aged patients have ended up and some hashers were surprisingly able to visit the graves of their forefathers. A nice touch.

Angela calmly chatted to Damian with queries on the size of male hashers manhoods (correctly reported to the day's acting RA James Craig). Which reminds me that Brian “Soft Balls” didn't run because two pricks had lanced his foot!

The Hash Mistress (I won't say mattress because it's not very complimentary) showed a clean pair of heels whilst the ex-RA O'Neale displayed a mobility not commonly witnessed on this hash. Perhaps he scented the beer.

Once through Sunset Crest the trail took us into and up a heavily wooded and steep gully. Much gasping and cursing was heard as the pack clambered up the slippery slope. At the top - a magical sight - the cars and the bar. Cool refreshments were doled out, quickly accepted and consumed.

The acting RA who, as a hash puppy obviously learned well from the castigations of the first RA Chris Harvey, chose a devilish jury and meted out some very well deserved punishments. Not only to the Doc, Brian and Angela but to your scribe who was given the Richard Appleby award for leaving his stinking Hash trainers near to his hotel bed. Drinking a beer out of one of them - after clearing out some vegetation - was not an ecstatic experience! Other down downs I cannot recall, and I apologize for this, is due to the generous hospitality of fellow hashers at the bar and the après-hash at Ralf & Lidia's.

Who said the hash was in decline? On my part I thought that the hares put on a very good run (despite their penny pinching use of flour) and provided a welcoming house afterwards. The Hash Mistress is clearly enjoying her exalted status and is expressing some excellent ideas for the future. The old timers remain the same, nodding sagely and trying to drink as much beer as they did 10 - 20 years ago. It doesn't work! ONON
